Hon. D. H. Wells was a member of the legislative council in the territorial assembly for many terms, and of all the conventions that framed constitutions for Utan's statehood, except the last. His clear perception of legal points and strong regard for constitutional principles rendered him a valuable advisor and an able legislator.

On the 4th of January, 1857, Brother Wells was appointed second counselor to President Brigham Young, filling the vacancy occasioned by the death of President Jededian M. Grant. Brother Wells had been ordained an apostle and with President Sprigham Young and Heber C. Kimball he visited the Saints throughout the territory, aided in locating and organizing settlements and gave counsel in relation to the affairs of the church. He was also the superintendent of public works, occupying that position until 1864. In the absence of Brigham Young he was frequently left in charge of athers and was looked to for advice in important matters.

Property-Description and Locality.

Chamberlin & Small, well known builders here, have recently opened up one of the most desirable coal mining properties in the county. The claim was located by a prospector thirteen years ago, but the mine was never worked until the present owners got possession of the property.

The exact location of the mine is in the S. E. quarter-section of township 14, range 110 west, and, on a bee line, is only five and one-half miles from Evanston. The place is only two miles from the Union Pacific railway, and there is a natural road-bed from the mine to the railroad. As soon as spring opens the proprietors are to build a ridge wagon road from Evanston to the workings. The owners have a number of practical inhers employed and the daily output is large. The tunnel is only seventy-live feet in depth, and there is a well defined vein of coal seven feet thick.

There is a good demand for the output, and does not since whon exposed to the air very readily. It burns nicely into asbes, leaving no cinders. The surrounding country is illed with a fine specimen of coal. The mine will have a large force of men put on soon, and no expense will be spared to make the property affirst closs one. This mine is in the same locality as that of Pexton & Arneld's, near Mills.—Eronston Register. The exact location of the mine is in the
